SEVERE ELECTRICAL
STORM VISITS CITY

One of the most severe electrical storms which has visited Janesville in several years, swept over the city last night. The storm began at about 8:30, with bright flashes of lightning and loud thunder, soon followed by a heavy downpour of rain. Although the rain did not last long in the city, the downpour continued for nearly two hours northwest of here.

Half fell north of the city. Although there were no fires, several trees were blown down in different parts of the city. The street cars did not run after 10 o'clock and at a late hour today were still at a standstill because of a lack of power.

The nine o'clock interurban was the last one to come to Janesville, and although a car was sent out from here this morning, no cars have arrived here.

"Chamber of Commerce"
Cigar Now on Market

The Wisconsin Tobacco company, South Main street, is now making a new cigar, and with a good deal of civic pride they announce that it has been named "The Janesville Chamber of Commerce." The first box of these has been presented to Frank Green, manager of the Janesville Chamber of Commerce and all those to whom he has given samples declare that they are very good cigars.

Mr. K. Seall, manager of the Wisconsin Tobacco company, hit upon the novel idea of naming the cigar in honor of the city which has done so much for him. The cigars are put up in attractive boxes.

There are two kinds of coffee. Have you tried that at the new cafeteria? Shop in the Gazette before you shop in the stores.

Whitewater News

Whitewater, Aug. 5.—The work of organizing a new company in the national guard is progressing very nicely and much of the credit must be given to Olat Johnson, J. Thiele, L. O. Nell and E. A. Lange. A minimum of 65 is required and that number will be reached soon. The terms of service are for one to three years, depending on previous experience. This city has maintained a guard for 40 years and much pride has been taken in it. The armory is in a much better condition than it has ever been, and there is a fine range three miles north of the city.

Rev. A. Adams, Rev. L. R. Howard, H. P. Goodman, G. S. Marsh and F. B. Bloodgood went to Fort Atkinson Sunday evening to hear the address by William H. Taft.

Why the Brunswick Method of Reproduction Insures a Superior Phonograph

Reason No. 1 The Brunswick Method of Reproduction includes the Ultona, a new conception in playing. The Ultona consists of an arrangement of the several necessary reproducing diaphragms upon one tone arm—an all-in-one arrangement, with no attachments—nothing to take off or put on.

At a turn of the hand, the Ultona presents to any type of record the proper diaphragm and needle, the exact weight. Thus the requirements of each type of record are met. The Ultona demands no sacrifice in tone, as attachments often do.

Reason No. 2 Equal in importance to reproduction is tone amplification. The Brunswick Method of Reproduction also includes a new idea in acoustics—The Brunswick Amplifier.

Old-time ideas were at variance. Some makers still cling to metal construction. Others use a combination of wood and metal—a wooden horn and a metal casting as the "throat."

But the Brunswick Amplifier is oval in shape, and built entirely of wood, like a fine violin. It is molded of holly-wood. The sound waves receive uniform amplification to reach their fullness, hence The Brunswick tone is richer and more natural. Strident, metallic notes are absent.

TRAINING WOMEN FOR SKILLED TRADES.

Since the war a good deal of attention is being given to the question of training women to engage in the so-called skilled trades. During the war, a large number of women supplanted men in factories and at other industrial occupations, and while most of these women were employed only in the more simple processes of skilled trades, it is generally conceded that they made good to a remarkable extent. Some even have shown a proficiency in skilled work that makes them quite as valuable as the trained male workers, and many others are anxious and have displayed an ambition to master the operation of regular trades, thereby enable them to draw the wages of skilled workers. And it is argued that such ambitions should be encouraged, and that facilities should be provided to train women in the skilled trades, just the same as male workers now are trained in similar trades.

Most of the jobs undertaken by the first women replacing men required no previous industrial experience. But as the movement of women into industry assumed larger proportions, training schools became necessary adjuncts to many plants employing this class of worker. Of 117 plants included in a study of the industrial placement of men by women's employment, recently conducted by the department of labor of that state, seven were found training women in vocational schools. Of this number two were employing more than 5,000 women workers, one had just about reached this maximum working force when the signing of the armistice halted its operations, and four were employing from 242 to 515 women workers. Six others claimed that their policy was to include training for an indefinite number of women workers. Opinions seem to differ, however, as to the best method for training this new class of workers. Some industrial managers insist that better results are obtained by simply placing the untrained women directly in the shops, to be taught by experienced instructors, thereby associating them from the start with experienced workers, rather than with inexperienced workers. Other managers claim that preliminary training saves the time of foremen and fellow workers, whose work the "green hand" is apt to interrupt by constant calls for assistance.

Practically all employers agree, however, that if women are to enter the machine or other skilled trades, in order to make up for the amateur training they missed as children and young girls in the way of handling the simple tools that the average boy learns to handle almost from the beginning, they must pass through a course of preliminary manual training. This now is furnished by most of the high schools and many of the grade schools.

THE COST OF CLOTHES.

We do not like to believe predictions of an unpleasant season, but we might as well take warning from the tailors' tale us what they are going to charge this fall and winter. Already pushed to what he considers the extreme limit, the average man is going to be tried just a little further. As the war recedes in the past, prices continue to climb. Are all these advances made necessary by increases in cost of materials and labor, or are there other influences at work?

A New York newspaper quotes a leading tailor as follows:

"It does seem preposterous to the average man to hear that prices like $120 for a business suit and $185 to $200 for an overcoat will be charged within the next few months; but such is the case. The main cause for the advance of 200 percent in the cost of labor and woollens within the last three years, with prospects of still greater advances within the near future."

Tailors in New York who will charge like this have probably been getting from $80 to $100 for a suit heretofore. They are the sort who have customers who will pay anything to be smartly clad. They get a little more insight into the price-boasting game a little further along in the interview. The tailor continues:

"The price does not seem to interfere in the slightest with those seeking good clothes. If a man has money in his pocket he will pay almost any price asked for a suit rather than place himself in the position of being 'cheap' by arguing about it."

There is the psychology of the matter in a nutshell. This is a period of inflation, and many have money. A good part of the staggering increase in the prices of things may be due to the discovery that men will be mulcted rather than let a tailor make them look "cheap." New York has always been easy for dealers catering to the "smart" trade in the Broadway and Fifth Avenue districts, but the rest of the country is not yet so greatly afflicted with the sort of vanity that makes men willing to throw away their money in order to keep in countenance before a tailor.

It is true that prices of material and labor are rising, and tailors will get more. If they try to put on the extreme New York idea, they may find that we will take to the next city. Fifty Campus Kut Klothes of the ready-made dealer, who has customers more interested in making ends meet than in being smart.

MOVIE CENSORSHIP.

The best censorship for moving picture theaters is the public which attends such places of amusement. If a theater gets the name of showing vulgar plays, it loses its patronage. The movie theater cannot give without the backing of the families of a community, and the taste of the majority is decent. That tends to us to be the only censorship necessary for ordinary purposes. For unusual cases laws against nuisances apply and police powers are ample. The Funkhauser censorship, which forbade on the screen representation of the very things depicted on the living stage of Chicago every day without objection, was finally laughed out of that city. There is something which arouses opposition in the proposal that three or five persons in a community be vested with authority to pass on the kind of amusements the public shall be permitted to enjoy.

Nor do we favor taking the kick out of the moving pictures. One-half percent movies would be flat and unprofitable. The movies are intended, to depict real life with its emotions and its struggles. Every adult person will find often in the pictures scenes which describe his own observations, sometimes his own experiences. He may find in them a way out of his own troubles. The faithfulness with which they show real life is, we believe, one of the first reasons for their amazing popularity. Not all moving picture shows are suitable for children. Adults cannot regulate their own lives by juvenile standards, and the solution of that situation would seem to be the exclusion of children except at certain shows on certain nights of each week when special programs could be prepared for them.

A nation-wide strike of railway shopmen has been called, to back up a demand for more wages to keep up with the high cost of living. And thus prices and wages keep chasing each other around in a circle, while congress is twirling its thumbs and wondering what to do about it.

The white man who threw a stone at a negro, thereby precipitating the serious race riots that have occurred in that city, has been held on a charge of murder. One never can tell what may be started by some little thing, therefore it is best to be careful before doing a reckless thing too hastily.

Some local housewives deplore the passing of the old-time garden truck and vegetable peddlers. The chief reason for this unquestionably was the vexation of a peddlers' license law, but any attempt to repeal this law now would start a merry fight.

Lloyd George, British premier, declares it will be at least a year or two before prices recede from their present high levels. And the worst of it is the fact there is much to indicate the British statesman is right about it.

Kaiser Ludendorff declares it was the general who decided that Germany must hang on to Belgium after the war. And Ludendorff probably knows what he is talking about.

It is unfortunate, to say the least, that there appears to be no base for that story of potatoes selling for $1 a bushel up in the potato belt.

Q. What salary did the ex-Kaiser receive per year when rule of Germany? N. C. D.

A. William II. of Germany received $7,734,186 per year.

Q. What is the Santa Fe Trail?

A. The Santa Fe Trail was an overland route between Independence, Mo., and Santa Fe, N. M., over which the commerce of the plains was carried on for more than a generation before the building of railroads.

Q. Is boiling water as hot on a mountain top as at sea level?

A. Water boils at a lower temperature at a high altitude than at sea level. Therefore it is not as hot when it boils. For this reason it requires much more time to cook beans, for instance in Colorado than in New Jersey.

Q. When and where did the idea of Santa Claus originate? J. D. V.

A. Santa Claus was a fourth century bishop in Asia Minor. His feast in Germany was a time of presents and feasting. In various places Santa Claus began to be mimicked by a man dressed as a bishop, who brought gifts. Santa Claus was the Dutch form of Saint Nicholas.

Q. What is the salary of the president's private secretary? H. D. V.

A. The salary of the president's private secretary is $7,500.

Q. May the president of the United States hold his office for three or more terms? I. F. V.

A. There is no provision in the constitution prohibiting the president from serving three terms. George Washington refused a third term and this precedent has held throughout the entire history of the United States.

TraveletteBy Niksah

ANACAPA. Anacapa is a mass of sea-gnawed rock rising sharply from vast brown beds of the ocean, weed known as kelp. It is one of the most picturesque of California's channel islands. The name means ever-changing and is appropriate both because the island looks entirely different from every side, and also because it is obviously dying—it is being slowly devoured by the sea. It has already been cut into several pieces and its steep cliffs are riddled with caves, some of which were used by pirates long ago, and some are still used by seals and sea lions. Others of these caves lie just below the waterline and alternately swallow and disgorge the breakers with gigantic gurgles and roars.

Although the island is only a few miles in area, and looks most of the time like an absolute desert, it is a profitable sheep ranch. There are no springs or other water holes in it. It is said that fogs come up every night to soak the coats of the sheep with water that they may drink from each other, the wool holding the water like a sponge. The teller of this tale does not explain what the sheep do immediately after shearing time. Anyway, the sheep manage to exist there, and even to get fat in the months immediately after the rainy season when this strange little sea atoll blooms with bright tints of grass and wild flowers.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

PREPARATION.

When I'm obliged to go away
I pay some little heed
To all the things from day to day
The ones I love may need.
I'd never think of starting out
For any distant scene
Unless I knew beyond a doubt
That they were all serene.

I want them all at home to know
That they have naught to fear
That they may gaily come or go
As though I still were near.
I try to leave them all prepared
To meet from day to day
The many cares I should have shared
Were I not far away.

Think you that I could turn my back
Upon them for a day
Knowing that they at home must lack
Life's joys while I'm away?
Think you that I could ever roam
With any peace of mind
Leaving an unprotected home
And loving hearts behind?

When I am called to cities far
I brief or lengthy stay
I want to know my loved ones are Secure while I'm away.
Unless I have provided well
For every need I know
And they in perfect peace may dwell
I'm not prepared to go.

God grant when He shall send for me
To cross death's chasm black
And all that far and unknown sea
From which no man comes back
That I may leave my loved ones here
Secure from want and woe
And misery and doubt and fear
And be prepared to go.

WALWORTH

AFTON

Afton, Aug. 5.—Mrs. Edward Hammet was stricken with paralysis Monday at 4 a. m. A physician was summoned from Beloit and all was done that loving hands could do, but to no avail. She passed away at nine twenty without regaining consciousness.

Augusta Noack was born at Jefferson, Wis., 1855, where she resided until her marriage to Edward Hammet at Watertown in 1876. Three years later they moved to Afton, where they have made their home until the present time. To this union four children were born, one son, Ferdinand Hammet, Mrs. Amelia Beckus, Mrs. Walter Chapin of Afton, and Mrs. Bertha Ward of Beloit. These children, with the bereaved husband and eight grandchildren, are left to mourn the loss of a devoted wife and a loving mother. Funeral services, conducted by the Rev. Muller of Janesville, will be held at the home Wednesday at 2 p. m. Interment in Oak Hill cemetery.

Heart and Home Problems

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON
LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO MRS. THOMPSON, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am engaged to a fellow who is a little younger than I. I have gone with him for over a year but sometimes I am in doubt as to my love for him. There is another fellow who wants to go with me. Should I break the engagement with the first fellow and go with the second?

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have heard of a ring which he gave me. Should I wear it anyway? PEGGY.

I think you should break your engagement since you are not sure of your love. It is not fair to the man to continue a loveless engagement. Send back the ring and insist that he take it, even if he sells it and gets the money back. Since you are breaking the engagement you have no right to the ring.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: My hair used to be a little lighter on the top of my head than at the bottom and so I bought a bottle of something to make my hair lighter at the sides and back, but instead of making it lighter at the sides it left it the same shade at the sides and back, but still lighter on the top.

Can you publish something to make it darker on the top? It is just worrying me every day and I don't go out anywhere because it looks so bad.

It is impossible for me to suggest anything helpful except to brush the hair thoroughly twice a day and massage the scalp. This will increase the circulation and will in time improve the appearance of the hair.

You would only injure the color of the hair further if you tried to dye it again. Do not be foolishly sensitive about this matter. Very often light hair is of different shades.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) Can you tell me some sure way to reduce flesh that will not injure the health? (2) What is good to use for little black ants in the cupboard? (3) I am bothered with my feet in hot weather. They swell and ache so that I can't go any place and enjoy myself. I also have corns on my little toes. I have used everything I have ever heard of.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Since having typhoid fever about five months ago I have lost nearly all my hair. There is no new hair coming in. What can I do to make it grow? Will it all come out before the new hair starts to come in? Do you advise me to have it bobbed? SHIRLEY.

Massage your scalp every day with vasoline to start new hair. The old will be pushed out by the new hair. A barber would be wise to have your hair bobbed.

"P. O. G.": Such a thing is possible. Consult a physician.

In most insect stings; neutralize it so far as possible by applying alkalies, such as saleratus (sodium bicarbonate, soda). This applies to mosquito bites also. Besides applying ammonia to mosquito bites, menthol, ten grains, in cold water or other toilet water, four ounces, makes a grateful application for the itching.

When the wood tick bites he buries his head and by applying alkalies with blood. If the tick is brushed off the head remains in the wound and causes inflammation and swelling. Touch the tick with a drop of turpentine and he will spontaneously withdraw from the operation; or, if you chew tobacco, give the animal a chew—the effect is just as disastrous.

Bedbug bites require weak ammonia or spirit of camphor or weak carbolic acid solution. The same remedies relieve the irritation of common flea bites.

The harvest bug is a minute insect which may be seen in the skin of the arm pit, scalp and elsewhere as a minute red or orange-red point, which may be picked out.

Stunaw itch or grain itch is caused by a parasite that lives on grain-destrating pests. It produces lesions resembling chicken-pox and hives, but more itchy than chicken-pox; and it is unlike ordinary itch (scabies) in that no lesions appear on the hands or wrists as a rule. The itching subsides in a day or so, and the eruption after another week. Sulphur ointment is the best application.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.
Body Temperature.

Is a person in danger if the temperature is found two degrees below normal? (Miss E. H.)

ANSWER—No, the body temperature may be two degrees below the average at times in natural circumstances. A clinical thermometer is a bad thing to keep at the house—it causes much more anxiety than it ever relieves. The body temperature is taken about ten times too much anyhow, particularly by amateur nurses.

Tuberculosis.
1. Where is the best climate for arresting tuberculosis? Does a high altitude affect one's heart? 3. How long would one have to stay in Colorado to eradicate T. B. incident? 4. Please give formula for quinine tobacco. (C. C.)

ANSWER—There is no best climate; the chance of an arrest is as good at home as elsewhere. All climates are like good if they are sufficiently far away. Tuberculosis is a disease of the lungs. Patients are like children in their faith in fairy tales. For a change of climate without the advice and sanction of your own physician. 2. You say you plan to stay there the rest of your life. 3. Send stamped, addressed envelope.

Household Hints

MENU HINT

Breakfast. Corn Fritters. Toast. Luncheon. Ham, Loaf Sandwiches. Tomato Salad. Blackberry Pie. Dinner. Clam Cocktail. Tuna Fish Salad. Baked Potatoes. Lettuce. Stewed Fruit. Coffee.

RECIPES FOR A DAY.

Tuna Fish Salad—Open a can of fish and then turn into a sieve and quickly rinse under the cold water. Turn into a china dish and then shred fine a sufficient amount of cabbage to measure one cup. Place in a mixing bowl and add one green pepper chopped fine, one grated onion, two tablespoons of finely chopped parsley, the flaked tuna fish.

Toss gently with a fork to mix and then turn into a nest of lettuce leaves and serve with Russian dressing.

Tomato Floss Salad—Three tomatoes, lettuce, one cup spaghetti, cooked, one onion, mayonnaise dressing.

Peel and ice nice ripe tomatoes; arrange a bed of shredded lettuce on plates; cut tomatoes in eighths, almost through, and open like a rose; place tomato on lettuce and fill with cold spaghetti and onion. Chop fine, cover with mayonnaise dressing and serve at once.

Cream of Carrot Soup—One and one-half cups whole milk, one and one-half tablespoons butter, one and one-half tablespoons flour, one-half small onion, one teaspoon salt, few grains of mace.

Combine the carrots, milk, onion and mace in double boiler and cook till carrots are done, about 40 minutes. Remove onion, add the butter and flour, creamed together with the seasoning and cook at least 10 minutes and serve.

Blackberry Gelatin—Two tablespoons gelatin, two-thirds cups water,

SLIM SILHOUETTE
PERSISTS IN NEW
FROCKS FOR FALL

BY ELOISE.

The fall frocks resemble those of spring when it comes to the matter of length and width lines, which means that the extremely simple frock with a long slender silhouette will persist during the coming season. Again the smart one-piece frocks will vie with suits for first place as street and informal costumes. When worn with a large hat and a smart fur collar, cape or stole there is really nothing more satisfactory for restaurant wear than a dainty or velvet frock.

The gown is of dark blue velvet cloth with a touch of light blue chiffon relieving the plainness of the neckline. Two bands of heavy embroidery encircle the skirt and it may be noted here that embroidery will play a big part in all the frocks and suits of the coming fall and winter season. An unusual touch is added by two inverted folds at the waistline.

These inverted folds have been very popular as trimming during the spring and summer and now one is beginning to expect them on a frock some place or other, either at the neck, or hem, or hips, or perhaps the cuffs.

two tablespoons lemon juice, three cups stewed fresh or canned blackberries, one cup sugar. Heat the berry juice and sugar, add gelatin, which has been soaked for 20 minutes in water and stir until dissolved. Remove from heat, add the lemon juice and berries and pour into molds to set.

COOKING TEACHER'S TIPS.
It is said the flavor of shrimp is improved if boiling water is poured over them shortly before they are to be served. But be sure and immediately drain it off.

Use the old brooms for a floor polisher. Cut the straw and sweep with a piece of felt or carpet. The old felt hat can be utilized for this purpose.

Put weights into the hems of summer sash curtains and they will not blow out of the window or against the screens and can be kept clean much longer.

Your fountain pen will not leak if you rub gum turpentine on the thread before screwing on the head.

All milk puddings such as rice, tapioca, etc., should be cooked slowly. Rapid boiling destroys the flavor and causes the milk to curdle. Allow four hours for the baking of a milk pudding.

A CHANCE TO LIVE

BY ZOE BECKLEY

POVERTY'S PINCH.
A stirring story of a man and a woman who, after a long and hard struggle, find a way to live.

There was of course, no bath, for it was one of the old type "cold water flats." Water for bathing was heated on the stove in the kitchen, and the family was usually to be seen hanging on a nail outside the tenant's back windows.

Annie could have rented rooms of more modern type. "Model" tenements were just being built, with "outside stairways," cement floors and good plumbing. But they were all at home in and for every advantage of sanitation there was something undesirable. Sunshine was lacking or else the rental was too high for Bernard's slim wage.

The block was depressing. The tenements on either side were of a uniform, old-fashioned type, with battered doors, usually open, and slatted hallways that were dark and had the composite breath of many cookings, many washings, many sleepings—a smell as characteristic of the tenements as the aroma one sniffs behind the scenes in the theatre, or the faint wisp of old incense, candle smoke, flowers and leather prayer books is of a church.

There were little shops here and there smaller and less prosperous than those on the avenues, their wares more wilted, their window dis-

Women's Institution Will Be Opened Soon

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Aug. 5.—That the Taychedah home for women state institution will be in operation before Jan. 1, is the prediction of M. J. Tappins, secretary of the state board of control. The institution was a legislative act, but 1913 session of the legislature, but construction work has been hampered and delayed owing to the war.

It is possible that the Taychedah institution will be open before Jan. 1, but surely by the first of the year," said Secretary Tappins today. "The board at its meeting Tuesday will consider plans for the completion of the heating plant and the work will be rushed to early completion."

At the same time plans will also be considered for new buildings at Union Grove hospital for the feeble minded and for the Wales tuberculosis sanitarium. The new state board of control, including regular meetings so that the building program may be put under way. About $150,000 will be expended by the board for the installation of boilers at the home for the feeble minded, Chippewa Falls. Northern hospital for the insane at Winnebago, the prison at Waupun and the sanitarium at Wales. The board is expediting some trouble in finding a sufficient labor supply to carry out the state's $1,500,000 program authorized by the last session.

DIMES OR DOLLARS.

A friend of ours was telling us of a comfortable raise in salary which he just received.

It was plain to be seen that if he should accumulate a fortune the size of Mr. Rockefeller's he never would feel any richer than he did at that moment.

"Well," asked the Man-who-thinks, "when are you going to let upon now, the dimes or the dollars?"

"Why not both?" inquired the newly-rich Rockefeller negligently.

"Because just as soon as you do you will be poorer than you were before," said the Man-who-thinks, promptly.

They spread out on little and big things at once.

And then he went on to tell of his first raise. "We were tired of pinching pennies," he said, "and there were a lot of dollar things we'd been pinching for a long time, too. So we began to spread out on both the little things and the big things all at once."

I spent more on my cigars and we bought ourselves all the good candy we wanted and rode short distances when we'd been used to walking, and never hesitated to treat ourselves to an ice cream soda (that was before the day of the icees). And we went to the theatre in $1.50 seats (they were on the floor in those days) instead of in the gallery.

"We felt that was all justified. And so it would have been if we hadn't been spending the dollars at the same times. We felt we owed it to ourselves to get a better looking rug for the living-room and a really good camera and a few little things like that. The result was that at the end of six months we found we had saved less than we had before and we had to stop and take stock."

"Well, what did you do about it?" they had said their friend.

"We went over our accounts and we realized that we'd been spending our raise almost twice over, once in the little things and once in the big things, and we made up our mind that we couldn't do both. We'd either have to spend it in dimes or in dollars."

"What did you decide on?" asked someone.

"Which does a woman always prefer?" countered the Man-who-thinks.

"The dollars," said the newly-rich. "Correct," said the Man-who-thinks. "We went back to walking, and we took gallery seats again and cut down the ice cream sodas, etc., until the next raise. Then we let out a little on the dimes."

"He Hated Pinching Pennies."

"Well, I don't know," said the newly-rich friend, "I like the big things all right, but I do hate pinching pennies."

"There's a lot in that," said the Man-who-thinks. "There's nothing like the comfort you get out of thinking you don't have to scrimp about little expenditures. I think I got more fun out of my second raise than the first on that account. I wouldn't blame anyone who preferred to spend his surplus in dimes. Only you can't spend it in both."

Which is pretty good philosophy, don't you think?

WHAT'S BITING YOU TODAY?

It takes from 30 to 100 stings to make a man immune to bee stings. Somehow this treatment reminds me of some of our modern remedial measures; very successful, but so expensive.

A solution of 20 grains of permanganate of potash in a tincture of water makes an excellent application for bee stings. Keep gauze or cotton wet with the solution on the affected area. A teaspoonful of household ammonia in the same quantity of water is another application which relieves bee stings. If the spot can be examined with a lens the sting may sometimes be found and withdrawn with tweezers which have been sterilized in a flame or by boiling. Common clay or clean mud (alkaline) is an excellent emergency application for bee stings. Formic acid is the irritant

The Magnificent Ambersons

By BOOTH TARKINGTON

Copyright by Doubleday, Page & Co.
"It never was becoming to her to look pale," Fanny said absently, a few moments after Isabel's departure. "I suppose your mother's been being pretty gay? Going a lot?"
"How could she?" George asked cheerfully. "In mourning, of course all she could do was just sit around and look on. That's all Lucy could do either, for the matter of that."
"I suppose so," his aunt assented. "How did Lucy get home? Did you drive out to their house with her before you came here?"
"No. She drove home with her father, of course."
"Oh, I see. So Eugene came to the station to meet you?"
"To meet us," George echoed, renewing his attack upon the salmon salad. "How could he?"
"I don't know what you mean," Fanny said daintily. In the desolate voice that had become her habit. "I haven't seen him while your mother's been away."
"Naturally," said George. "He's been East himself."
At this Fanny's drooping eyelids opened wide.
"Did you see him?"
"Well, naturally, since he made the trip home with us."
Fanny's eyelids drooped, and she sat silent until George pushed back his chair and lit a cigarette, declaring his satisfaction with what she had provided. "You're a fine housekeeper," he said benevolently. "I don't believe you'd stay single very long if some of the bachelors and widowers around town could just see you."
She did not hear him. "It's a little odd," she said.
"What's odd?"
"Your mother's not mentioning that Mr. Morgan had been with you."
"Didn't think of it, I suppose," said George carelessly; and, his benevolent mood increasing, he conceived the idea that a little harmless rallying might serve to elevate his aunt's drooping spirits. "I'll tell you something, in confidence," he said solemnly.
She looked up, startled. "What?"
"Well, it struck me that Mr. Morgan was looking pretty absent-minded, most of the time; and he certainly is dressing better than he used to. I shouldn't be a bit surprised if all the young fellows had been waiting for was to know he had an assured income before he proposed."
"What young fellow?"
"This young fellow Morgan," laughed George. "Honestly, Aunt Fanny, I shouldn't be a bit surprised to have him request an interview with me any day, and declare that his intentions are honorable, and ask my permission to pay his addresses to you. What had I better tell him?"
Fanny burst into tears.
"Good heavens!" George cried. "I was only teasing. I didn't mean—"
"Let me alone," she said lifelessly; and, continuing to weep, rose and began to clear away the china and silver. George was distressed. "I didn't mean anything, Aunt Fanny! I didn't—"

"Who Wouldn't Swear?" George demanded hotly.
"What does grandfater mean, doing such things?"
"My private opinion is," said Amberson gravely, "he desires to increase his income by building these houses to rent."
"Well, in the name of heaven, can't he increase his income any other way but this?"
"In the name of heaven, it would appear he couldn't."
"It's beastly! It's a damn degradation! It's a crime!"
"I don't know about its being a crime," said his uncle, stepping over some planks to join him. "It might be a mistake, though. Your mother said not to tell you until we got home, so as not to spoil commencement for you. She rather feared you'd be upset."
"Upset! Oh, my Lord, I should think I would be upset! He's in his second childhood!"
"Well, I thought, myself, it was a mistake. I wanted him to put up an apartment building instead of these houses."
"An apartment building! Here?"
"Yes; that was my idea."
George struck his hands together despairingly. "An apartment house! Oh, my Lord!"
"Don't worry! Your grandfater wouldn't listen to me, but he'll wish he had, some day. He sticks it out that apartment houses will never do in a town of this type, and when I pointed know you'd got 'so sensitive as all that."

"You'd better go up to bed," she said desolately, going on with her work and her weeping.
He obeyed, and could still hear a pathetic sniffling from the dining room as he went up the stairs.
"By George!" he grunted, as he reached his own room; and his thought was that living with a person so sensitive to kindly raillery might prove lugubrious. He went to the window and looked through the darkness to the great silhouette of his grandfather's house. Lights were burning over there, upstairs; probably his newly arrived uncle was engaged in talk with the Major.
George's glance lowered, resting casually upon the indistinct ground, and he beheld some vague shapes, unfamiliar to him. Formless heaps, they seemed; but, without much curiosity, he supposed that sewer connections or water pipes might be out of order, making necessary some excavations. Not greatly disturbed, he pulled down the shade, yawned, and began to undress, leaving further investigation for the morning.
But in the morning he had forgotten all about it, and raised his shade, to let in the light, without even glancing toward the ground. Not until he had finished dressing did he look forth from his window, and then his glance was casual. The next instant his attitude became electric, and he ran from his room, plunged down the stairs, out of the front door, and upon a nearer view of the destroyed lawn, began to release profanity upon the breezeless summer air, which remained unaffected. Between his mother's house and his grandfather's, excavations for the cellars of five new houses were in process, each within a few feet of his neighbor.
It was Sunday, and so the workmen implicated in these defacements were denied what unquestionably they would have considered a treat; but as the fanatic orator continued the monologue, a gentleman in flannels emerged upward from one of the excavations, and regarded him contemplatively.
"Obtaining any relief, nephew?" he inquired with some interest. "You must have learned quite a number of those expressions in childhood—it's so long since I'd heard them I fancied they were obsolete."
"Who wouldn't swear?" George demanded hotly.
"What does grandfater mean, doing such things?"

out to him that a dozen or so of 'em already are doing, he claimed it was just the novelty, and that they'd all be empty as soon as people got used to 'em. So he's putting up these houses."
"Is he getting miserly in his old age?"
"Hardly! Look what he gave Sydney and Amelia!"
"I don't mean he's a miser, of course," said George. "But why on earth didn't he sell something or other rather than do a thing like this?"
"As a matter of fact," Amberson returned coolly, "I believe he has sold something or other, from time to time."
"I suppose you're joking—or trying to?"
"That's the best way to look at it," Amberson said amiably. "Take the whole thing as a joke—and in the meantime, if you haven't had your breakfast—"
"I haven't!"
"Then if I were you I'd go in and get some. And"—paused, becoming serious—"and if I were you I wouldn't say anything to your grandfater about this."
"I don't think I could trust myself to speak to him about it," said George. "I want to treat him respectfully, because he is my grandfater, but I don't believe I could if I talked to him about such a thing as this!"
"And with a gesture of despair, plainly signifying that all too soon after leaving bright college years behind him he had entered into the full tragedy of life, George turned bitterly upon his heel and went into the house for his breakfast.
His uncle, with his head whimsically upon one side, gazed after him not altogether unsympathetically. Being a philosopher he was not surprised, that afternoon, in the course of a drive he took in the old carriage with the Major, when George was encountered upon the highway flashing along in his runabout with Lucy beside him and Pendergast doing better than three minutes.

"He seems to have recovered," Amberson remarked.
"I beg your pardon."
"Your grandfater."
"He was inclined to melancholy this morning, but seemed jolly enough just now when they passed us."

Meeting Called.
La Crosse—The prevailing feeling of unrest and dissatisfaction which appears to be general over the country because of alleged profiteering in the necessities of life manifested itself in La Crosse when the Citizens Co-operative league issued a call to the general public to attend a mass meeting of citizens on August 13 to protest and demand governmental action to stop profiteering. The session will be held in Riverside park where 25,000 persons can assemble. James Thompson, well known attorney and candidate for U. S. senator against Senator Lenroot at the last election, will be the principal speaker. He has devoted much of his time recently to a study of the situation as it affects the cost of living. An attempt will be made to have local legislators present at the meeting.

"I like the place," said Mr. Newell, "but the railroad fare is too high."
"But surely," said the bride, "the railroad will fix that for you when they know."
"When they know what?"
"That you're the man who bought five shares of their stock."
It is a dangerous thing, when you have let slip an unfortunate remark, to try and cover up the blunder.
Mrs. G. was talking with the wife of Judge H. about her son's choice of a profession.
"I don't want him to be a lawyer," she said.
"Why not?" asked the judge's wife.
"Then it's nothing much finer than the legal profession for a bright boy."
"Well," said Mrs. G. bluntly, "a lawyer has to tell me that I was talking to the wife of a lawyer, so she hastily added:
"That is—er—to be a good lawyer."

What Is SOLVAY COKE?

It is the product which results from baking a proper mixture of superior coals in air-tight retorts by means of external heat, in much the same manner as bread is baked in an oven—it is really baked coal.

The patented Solvay Process removes the smoke, soot and tarry matter, leaving practically pure carbon, the heat element. The fuel that has the most carbon will give the greatest heat.

BURN

Milwaukee Solvay Coke
"The Fuel Without a Fault"

The housewife enjoys it because it is clean—easy to handle—light in weight, and because it is always dependable whether used in cook stove, heater or furnace. It is cheaper than hard coal and extensive tests by the University of Illinois showed the heating efficiency of SOLVAY COKE to be 11% greater than they were able to get from anthracite, which means that even if you had to pay equal prices for it, Milwaukee Solvay Coke would be 11% cheaper than hard coal.

THE WISHING PLANE

BY WILLIS

When the children left the mines Captain Brave told them he was going to Scotland next. But I guess he changed his mind. For, first thing the children knew, they were flying over that country. They had passed over the Cheviot hills, which seemed to separate Scotland from England, and the Solway Firth, which is the name of an immense bay or harbor. Leaving Scotland the great plane sailed out over the water again and Jack and Jane thought for a minute that maybe Captain Brave was going to take them home to America and the folks at Mr. and Mrs. Brown again. But pretty soon they saw a number of islands far down below them. Jack couldn't wonder any longer. He just had to ask, "Captain Brave, where are you taking us?"
"Well, sir, if you must know, we're going to visit the place where all the Shetland ponies first came from."
Now I know you must have seen long of Shetland ponies. Little mites of baby horses, they seem, with their dainty little legs and hoofs, plump bodies, pretty heads and prettier manes and tails. Maybe many of you have ridden on them at the circus or fair. And maybe one or two of you have one right at home.
Well, they are called Shetland ponies because they were born, or their fathers and mothers were born, in the Shetland islands. There are prismatic electric lights on the streets of the business portion of Brodhead. They are a big improvement.
Chas. Beattie is enjoying a visit from his sister, Miss Nettie Beattie of California.
Mr. and Mrs. Lester Kirkpatrick departed Sunday for their home in Aberdeen, South Dakota.
Mrs. G. H. Christman of Janesville, was the guest of her daughter, Mrs. E. H. Bouton from Saturday until Sunday. Stanley Bouton accompanied her home for a week's stay.
Delton Howard, soldier in France for a year, returned home Saturday evening having received his discharge at Camp Grant.

Miss Laura Boott, Milton, returned Saturday having spent the week with Fraser, Janesville and Mrs. Jennie Trevorah.

Miss Verdelma Rote spent the past week with Mrs. Arthur Jones.

Pet Antelope Becomes Champion Dog Fighter

Lander, Wyo.—A six-months-old pup, mascot of a drilling crew working in the Buffalo Basin, is fast becoming the front-as-a-fighter. He will not permit any dog, from a St. Bernard to a Mexican hairless, to come anywhere near the camp. His manner of attack is quick and savage—approaching the enemy by leaps and using his hoofs, which are very sharp, in the clinches. There are several dogs so far have been defeated by this antelope and he has come out of every fight without a mark.

British Naval Man Holds Record of Dodging Death

London—Lieutenant D. Ramsdale, British navy, holds the world's record for dodging sudden death in submarine. He has served in five different submarines, all of which were sunk with all hands within four days after he left them. The last submarine he left was the L-55, sent down in the Baltic by a belshaviz shell. Previously he was rowing away from the E-49 when she was torpedoed.

Returns Home.

La Crosse—John (Lump) Weiss, La Crosse, who left the state university basketball team to join the colored army, returned to his home here after many months with the army in Europe. While there he captained the Le Mans district basketball team of the A. E. F. He may return to the university this fall. Weiss was a star in high school and also in normal school here, winning places on the majority of a state teams.
